HUGE DRUG HAUL MADE IN HOUSE

Under the protection of an elaborate buzzer telegraph system in a house at 240 West Jefferson street a dope hotel did business here on a large scale until raided by the police recently, at which time a quantity of morphine was discovered greater than all the drug stores of Phoenix are allowed to carry in stock, according to reports made this morning by Captain Sutherland of the police.

Police Officers Strasky and Tindell covered the case, discovered the dope and the buzzer system, and made the arrests, according to the police report. Those arrested were James Chadwick, his brother Earl Chadwick, and his wife, Violet Chadwick. James Chadwick assumed the guise of a guest of the trio, the other two subsequently being released. The arrests were made Nov. 20, and not reported at the time. In the pocket of Earl Chadwick's overcoat, it is claimed by the police, a package containing 1000 grains of morphine was discovered. In James Chadwick's coat sleeve, it is claimed, a bottle with 100 grains was discovered carefully concealed. It is claimed, also, that Mrs. Chadwick held under arrest disposed of 100 grains in the full plumbing. James Chadwick accounts for all of the dope, the police say, the other two being released thereby. He is said to be ill.

The buzzer system at the place of arrest, connected with all of the rooms in the house. Customers used the buzzer for signaling their identity and gaining admittance, the police stating that several were caught in that way as the police had only to wait in the house until the signal came and then make another arrest—as easy as swatting flies.

CAR DIDN'T STOP SO THE STREET RAILWAY CO. HAD TO EXPLAIN
Complaints of unsatisfactory service by the Phoenix Railway company, particularly in relation to that company's service last Monday night, were investigated Tuesday by the state corporation commission at the instance of F. J. K. McBride, assistant attorney general.

McBride stated that he, in company with a crowd of persons headed toward Washington street in the business district for a car between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock p. m. One passenger car did come, he said, and failed to stop, and he mentioned as a further cause of complaint that a man on the rear platform appeared to be enjoying the discomfort of the crowd.

Manager S. H. Mitchell and Inspector Otto F. Harrington, appearing for the company, explained to Commissioner D. P. Johnson that three cars in the vicinity of the capitol were derailed or otherwise held up because of the muddy conditions prevailing and that no regular custom were available for bringing up an extra car from the barns so an inexperienced man was sent out with the extra car and instructed to handle no passengers. At the place of the first derailment a regular car crew took charge and re-established the service. The company officials established an alibi for all their employees and proved that the man who did the laughing was a "shop on" or person stealing a ride.

McBride signified his willingness to drop the charge, and the hearing was called off.

Lost Airline dog, answers to name of Cap, escaped from yard Nov. 21, 552 E. Portland, A. J. Vialat. Reward—Adv.
